LATE TELEGRAMS

Mr Brodrick and India's Army. London, August 13. - Mr. St. John Bro. drick, the Minister for War, speaking at Godalming in Surrey, said that India drew 7.,000 soldiers from the British Army, and everyone with the Imperial instinct must wish the British and Indian armies to pull together; but, if he spoke simply from the point of view of the War Office, he would say 'Let India find her own soldiers and it would be much better for us.' The Indian forces might need a larger number and probably must do so; but that was not the War Office demand or policy. It was the Indian demand and the Indian policy. The War Office had to make further provision, and found the way and their proposal was met with an outburst from the Indian Press. 'But we are offering India,' he said, 'for a third of the price that for which she would have to pay thrice as much if she did it for herself.

The Minister for war and his Critics.

August 14 .- Mr Brodrick said that it was impossible for any Government, considering the defensive needs of the Empire as a whole, to ignore the demands of India in case of emergency. The South African proposal, he said, was made in the intereste of India, and the alternative was a considerable increase in the permanent garrison of India. The necessity, therefore, was not due to our difficulties in Europe or to any trouble forced upon India by our Imperial position, but to the needs and difficulties of India herself, and such increase would mean a very heavy charge on the taxpayers of India. He deprecated the strong language of some of the members. which, with the highly-coloured comments of the native press, were calculated to create the impression that the Imperial Government sought to impose on India, charges which England ought to bear. Such a statement was absolutely unjustifiable. If the South African proposal HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE was abandoned, some future Government of India would have to increase the permanent garrison. It was because he favoured economy in keeping down India's military expenditure hat he assented to the proposal of the Government for negotisting a subsidy and an agreement with the Ameer, similar to the agreement with his father. He would do his utmost to secure the amelioration of the condition of Indians already in South Afric , and, unless an improvement was guaranteed, he would not enection any proposals encoura ing immigration. The latter part of this message does not appear to belong to Mr Brodrick's speech.

It reads more like a statement by Lord Garibaldi's Remains.

Rome, August 27.—Amid pomp and dis-Public Works Department, by Order of play hardly overshadowed by the recent tragic event of the Church, the remains of Giuseppi Garibaldi havo been laid in their now resting place. The poet and novelist Gabriel d'Annunzio was the orator of the occasion. It was a great national event.

> Naples, August 27.—Vesuvius is again active. The cruption is spectacul r in the extreme. No fatalities are yet reported, though the population of the surrouning country is ready to move on an instant's The outpouring of lava is not large as yet.

Changes Wanted by Indian Medical Service. Allahabad, August 14 .- The Pioneer's London correspondent, telegraphing on the 12th instant, states that the grievances of the Indian Medical Service, which have been made the subject of an appeal to Members of Parliament by the British Association, include the slowness of promotion consequent on age retirement before full pension has been earned. The appeal claims an alteration of the retirement pension rules; increase of pay similar to that given to the Royal Army Medical Corps ; and the selection of the P.M.O. for India alternately from the Indian Medical Service and the Army Medical Department. The civil branch complains that honours are not given for purely professional distinction. and claims equal pay with the military branch; the abolition of rules imiting fees; that the Director-General of the Indian Medical Service should have the rank of Lleutenant-General, and a seat in the Viceroy's Council; and that administrative medical officers shou'd have seats in the Provincal Councils.

A CHAIR OF JAPANESE.

The L. and C. Papress says that Mr Robt. A. McLean sends a letter to the press to call public attention to the fact that King's College has instituted a Chair of Japanese, and has appointed as the first Professor a gentleman who was for more than 30 years in the Consular Service in Japan, and who is a well-known authority on all matters connected with the country, He states further :- Now that England has a Treaty of Alliance with Japan, i becomes a matter of first national importance that our Navai and Military officers should have some knowledge the language of a people with whose forces they may, at any time, perhaps soon in the present state of Far Eastern politics, have to co-operate in Eastern service. The growing commerce between England and Japan might be increased, and competition facilitated with our active and energetic trade rivals if our merchants and their clerical employes understood the Japanese language, and through it the character and wants of the people. Missionaries might greatly lessen the period that they now require for the acquisition of the language in Japan, and the great cost to their societies before they | can hope to be useful in this work, if, leaving England, they devoted proliminary study, The Japanese take to the English more than to any Western people, and no Eastern country has greater attractions for English travellers. The pleasure and profit of a visit there would be obtained by a few months' study in England. The Council of King's College | If I were King, by J. W. McCarthy 1 75 have, in creating this Chair, performed an The Gold Wolf, by Max Pemberton 1.75 eminent public service, and if the facilities they have provided are taken advantage of by the classes I have mentioned, one which will entitle the Council to the gratitude of the nation .- Japan Society, 1, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., July 22.

BABIES IN THE TRAIN.

RESERVED CARRIAGES WANTED.

THOUGHTFUL railway managers who already reserve carriages for ladies might adopt the suggestion of a correspondent who asks for compartments labelled · Babies'-a luxury to mothers of fretful infants. A lady who journeyed from Biistol to London with an only child recounts vivid recollections of the day. 'The baby was so troublesome that I arrived home thoroughly "done up," and to make matters worse I contracted a chill, and this led to preumonia and pleurisy, which nearly terminated fatally. My recovery was brought about in a remarkable way by Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people. Continuing, Mrs. Sealey said. My doctor said that I should probably go into contain sumption. After I had been upstairs three months, attended by two doctors, my husband bought a bottle of Dr. Williams' pink pills and I began to take them. Almost immediately I felt myself growing strongor, and as I went on I became brighter and more hopeful every day. My appetite impoved, my voice returned. It is wonderful what a lot of good those pills did me.

Mrs Sealey lives at 20 Winsford-street Bristol, England, and her words were reported at the time in the Bristol Times and Mirror. Her cure was due to the new blood which Dr. Williams' pink pills have the power of making. Threatened consumption nearly always arises from impoverished blood: so do anamia, St Vitus' dance, debility, loss of appetite, and the ailments that women so often endure, almost without complaint, all of which these pills have cured. To ensure the genuine pills the full name, Dr Williams' pink pills for pale people, must be noted on the pink wrapper, for substitutes and nameless pink pills never cared anything. Dr. Williams' medicine co., Holbornviaduct, London, send the genuine pills post free for two shillings and ninepence, six bottle, for thirteen and nine. One of t their most useful qualities is that of soothing and strengthening the nerves, so liable be worried and upset by the minor troubles of life-overwork, anxiety, and even the not uncommon duty (of w ich special 'Baby Compartments' would as he discomfort) of looking after Babies on a Railway Journey.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Speculation is rife as to who is likely to succeed His Excellency, Sir Henry Blake, as Governor of the Colony. Amongst the most likely are Sir A. Hemming, Sir C. A. Moloney, best Gin on Sir J. A. Swettenham, and Sir Frank A. Swettenham. Sir A. Hemming, G.C.M.G., has passed through the Copurity defies louis Office from the lower ranks, and has been the British delegate at various conferences and delimitation commissions. The Universal Gazette is informed by its correspondent at Pinghu District, Kashing Prefecture, that the practice of kidnapping was never entirely abeliahed in that par of Chekiang. The latest rumour that has been going around the District is that westerners in manufacturing a certain drug find the blood of living human beings to be one of the essential elements, therefore they have been buying human beings by the dosens and the price paid for them is in proportion to their strength and fatness. The Guzette remarks that such absurd rumours should certainly be treated with silent contempt, but in China, anti-foreign riots have often arisen from these very rumours, therefore the responsible authorities should at once issue proclamations counselling the people against giving credence to them, etc. and at the same time every effort should be made to capture the kidnappers who he doubt are the persons that created them:

There can be no doubt, the waters of the Colony, when he had dangerous goods on board, to wit, two cases of sporting cartridges. The defendant pleaded he was unaware of the cartridges being on his ship, and even if he had known would not have thought it necessary to hoist the red flag, seeing that curious business, and here the Colonial they were sporting cartridges, which ha averred, did not come under the heading of 'dangerous.' He also produced a letter playing the Chinese tune; while Mr Chadfrom the Harbour Master giving him wick seems to have executed a strategic permission to go alongside the wharf, which, he contended, exempted him from flying the danger signal. Mr T. Sercombe reconsidered an opinion somewhat Smith pointed out that there were two regulations published in the Government Gaze to on the 18th of June 1892. Regu lation 2 says that every ship having on board any dangerous goods shall, whilst in the waters of the Colony, hoist a red flag. Regulation 3 states, that any ship having on board or being about to take on board dangerous goods shall anchor at the Dangerous Goods Anchorage or such place in the Harbour as the Harbour Master shall point out. H. E. SIR HENRY BLAKE. "To the Editor of the 'CHINA MAIL."

CANTON, September 2. SIE -Encomiums as bestowed on Sir Henry Blake in your leader of Tuesday last, on his appointment as Governor of Ceylon, are rightly deserved by His Ex cellency, who, true to his courage conviction, stood a veritable friend to the Chinese in their need. It was always a pleasure to us Indians to read his speeches full of sympathy and feeling for the untives over whom he is sent to rule, their good genius, and a sigh always escaped this writer that a conscientious State servant is not appointed Gevernor Bombay. We need a Governor of the type of Sir Henry Blake, deplore we did not get him, and envy the lot of Ceylon .-

THE LONG TRAIL.

Lovat Frazer, Editor of the Times of India.

CHETOO, NORTH CHINA, June 29. Yesterday afternoon we passed within mile of Wei-hai-wei. There, if you like, was a spot where we would have loitered. We had friends there, and there was a Club, and rumours had reached us of all sorts of summer festivities. As we nesred and were picking out Port Edward; and began and never finished; and the new road round the island that shields the road round the island that shields the anchorage; we steamed past the British fleer, eight magnificent, warships in two lines, returning from manosuvres. Admira Bridge was putting the ships through a few final evolutions; and it was splendid, to see the great grey monsters curving and turning and wheeling across the right summer sea. But the trouble about Wei-hai-woi. we gathered, is that, when you are there, you feel like a Russian in Manchuria. You are comfortable enough, but you have no notion when you are going to leave it. regretfully we left Wei-hai-wei astern, and THE WARSHIPS AT ANCHOR. On entering the harbour there was still light enough to perceive a whole row of After what we have learnt lately of the warships lying at anohor. They were the ocean tramp. American squadron in these waters. There was the battleship Kentucky, carrying the beyond the Atlantic. There was the Oregon, whose splendid run around Cape Horn to live long in American naval annals. . There were other battleships and cruisers, and a couple of small river gunboats with enor This is all very puzzling, and may mous things which we called funnels, until a patriotic American lady, keenly sensitive about the correct use of the great American language, informed us that the proper word was 'smokestacks.' And, lastly, there was a smart cruiser flying the Dragon of China. Some things about the American Navy puzzle the uninitiated. We had heard at Manila. We came across another at Yokohama. And here was a third, the greatest found accommodation in a tolerable hostelry after we had been turned away from the chief and their female relatives, and the female re atives without the males. In the morning, we looked forth upon the world. There lay the American fleet, anchored symmetrically before us upon water like glass. On the left, a low-woodbluff with villas peeping out amid the foliage. On the right, a long circular sweep This Ordinance-for it is now law of yellow sands, ending at a little premontory crowned by an unmistakeable fort. On the verge of the sands, rows of villas and boarding-houses. Behind these, stretches of obvious market-gardens; and in the back ground, hare, rocky, but rather picturesque hills. The scene shorewards had the unfinished appearance of a little English watering place trying to struggle into prominence. You could almost have fancied that in the house windows were cards bearing the legend :- 'Hot water and shrimps provided. Young men and girls were splashing about in the water; a diving stage was anchored some way out; one man was even paddling a canoe.

THE BRIGHTON OF THE FAR EAST.

I descended to make enquiries from the landlord, and eventually solved the my 'Chefoo, sir,' said he magnificently 'is the Brighton of the Far East.' forth to investigate further. The Brighton of the Far East was not as cool as it might have been; sun hats were by no means superfluous. However, I persevered houses; past the really fine school where Chinese quarter; through the market gardens, where they were growing everything from Bartlett pears to kidney beans and around the hostels and the homes and the schools of the missionaries, who, plainy, know a pleasant summer resort when they see it, and have acquired much valuable land at Chefoo. Then I retraced my steps through the business quarter. whore the merchants have their offices and finally, came across the unique feature of Chefoo-its post offices. Chefoo has more post offices to the square milb than any other town in the world. There is a Russian, a German, a French, an English, Imperial Chinese, and Japanese post office, all within two minutes' walk of each other. Each sell the stamps of their respective nationality with the name of the town printed across them. The Russian and German offices are quite presentable structures, but the British office modestly secretes itself the recesses of a general store. And away on the adjacent bluff a dozen flags flutter the morning breeze over half a dozen Consulates, hard by the anchorage where the coasting steamers, constantly come and coasting trade. One firm alone sometimes has half a dozen steamers arriving in the course of the day.

RUSSIA'S LOVE FOR KOREA.

It was here that the opportunity for a

Then you ascend the estuary for shout fif teen miles in a sampan, and finally land at a point on the Korean bank. If you are modest and retiring, and do not wish to be confronted with awkward questions, you land about an hour before daybreak, what time the heedless Muscovite sleepeth. And then, if you discreetly advance as the dawn breaks, you will presently see at your feet. a Russian encampment. You can inspect all there is to be seen, and retire unobserved; the Russians are late sleepers on the Yalu. ### OMINOUS OUTLOOK IN THE NORTH.

Remember 1900. That there has of late been considerable political restlessness in the North, leaving aside the Manchurian question, no one, even though slightly interested in Chinese politics, can, we believe, deny, says the N. There has, however, been a certain feeling of dubiousness in Hongkong of an American Admiral at the minds of many as towards what direction this political restlessness and activity of all three. They seem to be strong on in reactionary circles is tending, who-Admirals since the war. Eventually we ther it is simply a combined and organised movement against the advancing tide one, which was full of officers and merchants, of progress and enlightenment—even going to the extreme point of republicanism-or a recrudescence of the motto of 'War to the knife against Western barbarians' which the Manchu party under the Empress Dowager, ex-Prince
